

Using Orders schema, write SQL statements corresponding for the following queries:

1. For each product return the product name and total number of items sold from that product.
2. For each customer return the customer's name and total number of orders corresponding to that customer.
3. For each employee display the employee name and the total price of products sold for which the employee represented the client. The employees should be descending based on the totals.